PALESTINE RIOTING SPREADING; REPORT DEATH TOLL NOW 600

School Survivors Safe; British Bombard Crowds

PARIS, Aug. 27.—Uncensored dispatches to the United Press from Beirut, Syria, today indicated that the rioting in Palestine between the Jews and the Arabs was spreading rapidly to the small towns and villages and was becoming aggravated by the alliance of Moslems and Christians.

It was reported that Bedouin rioted down upon the town of Afula and burned twenty houses. The correspondent said British planes were bombarding all assemblages in Palestine cities and towns.

The Quai D'Orsay announced today that a total of 600 Jews and Arabs were dead as a result of the Palestine plots since last Friday.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—The survivors of the Slavodka Talmudic School at Hebron, Palestine, are now safe, the head of the school advised the United Press by telegraph today. A large group of Americans attends the school and were included among the casualties when it was attacked by Arabs.

The message said twenty-two out of 175 students had been killed and the school badly damaged but the surviving faculty and students, with their families, are now safe.

JERUSALEM, Aug. 27.—Strong forces of Arab Moslems were concentrating before the populous Jewish center of Tel-Aviv today with the apparent intention of storming the city. A detachment of British troops was dispatched under full marching orders to aid in the defense of the community.

According to local Jewish sources the Arabs contemplaned attacking Tel-Aviv in full force before the arrival in Palestine of additional English troops which were being rushed here from several sections of the empire. Tel-Aviv has a Jewish population of 40,000.

Intermittent fighting continued in several points in spite of the arrival of additional troops. The bazaars and business places in the principal towns of the riot zone were closed today. Several new outbreaks were reported from various points.

The Arabs captured and looted the village of Afula yesterday, adding several new Jewish casualties to the rapidly mounting list.

The American consul has left for Hebron, where a number of American students at the Rabbinical seminary were killed in the Arab onslaught.

Shooting and looting continued in the suburbs even after the arrival of British reinforcements, although the patrols, supported by machine guns and armored cars, managed to establish some sort of order in the more populous parts of the city.

In the outlying districts, the fighting has not entirely halted. At Jaffa the British were forced to place two machine guns at strategic points and many British warships, traveling at top speed, were rushing to the port city with new troops and marines.

Report reaching here said that several districts hitherto unaffected by the riotous outbreak had become inflamed. Martial law has been proclaimed in the Tel-Aviv and a strict censorship has been established in many points in Palestine.

For the most part the Arabs were using clubs, knives and bludgeons in their attacks upon the Jews. The defending forces used rifles and were backed by machine guns. The extent of the casualties suffered by the Moslems was unknown, but were probably heavier than those suffered by the Jews.

The Oxford students who are studying here have been extremely helpful in repelling attacks.

British travelers returning from Nabulus, Haifa and other points reported today that Moslems were stopping all automobiles along the roads and searching them for Jews. The authorities issued orders prohibiting the carrying of any sort of weapons.

REPORT NICARAGUA REVOLT LEADER NOW REFUGE IN YUCATAN

General Sandino Is Living In Fear Of Assassination

By THOMAS L. STOKES
United Press Staff Correspondent
(Copyright 1929, by United Press)

MERIDA, Yucatan, Aug. 27.—General Augusto Cesar Sandino, one-time Nicaraguan revolutionary leader, is in armed refuge in this capital of Yucatan, center of one of the world's oldest civilizations.

His refuge is a suite on the third and top floor of one of Merida's largest and most pretentious hotels. He lives, for the most part, the life of a hermit, seldom leaving his rooms. When he does, he ventures forth like a Chicago beer lord, surrounded by an armed escort of half a dozen young men, lithe and hardy youths who followed him as he eluded the United States marines in the Nicaraguan mountains, the handful of followers escaped with him into Honduras.

When he is in his hotel retreat, the youthful bodyguard sit in re-lays, outside his door, keeping an eye over the balustrade upon the first floor patio below to see who comes and goes.

For Sandino, it is said, fears a possible assassination. When he first arrived here a few weeks ago by airplane from Vera Cruz, where he stopped only briefly when he learned he was not wanted there, the 33-year old rebel leader made an inflammatory speech in the public square, a tirade against "Yankee Imperialism."

That is his persistent note now as before.

But for the moment he is a leader without an army and apparently has made no great stir here, though he has some sympathizers in this state.

He surrounds himself with considerable mystery, and refused an interview with me on the ground that since the American people hated him he could not give an interview to an American correspondent.

As I looked about, I saw two soldiers, members of his bodyguard, sitting at a table in front of a suite in the opposite corner. I walked over to them. They spoke only Spanish and after repeated attempts to understand me they gave up and sent for an interpreter.

He arrived, a handsome young Mexican, olive-skinned, with flashing intelligent black eyes and sleek black hair, another member of Sandino's little band. He was like-wise in uniform and had a pistol strapped at his side. I told him I wanted to see Sandino. He went into a room nearby, apparently the youthful rebel general's quarters.

I waited for about fifteen minutes, all the while under the surveillance of the two members of the bodyguard on duty, feeling a bit uncomfortable. Finally, the young man returned and handed me a note signed by himself, Captain Jose De Paudes, designated as the staff of General Sandino.

"General Sandino," it said, "has just ordered me to take you to his following statement."

"Considering that his patriotic attitude against the North-American invasion in Nicaragua has brought against him the bitter hate of the American people, he has decided not to have interviews with North-American newspaper men. And he thinks of you that you will be kind enough to excuse his decision."

"Yours truly for fatherland and freedom, Capt. Jose de Paudes, General Sandino's staff."

AUTOIST SLUGGED AND ROBBED ON ROAD

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Aug. 27.—County authorities today were investigating the story of Donald McPhee, 30, manager of the Trench City Chatter Loan company, Urichville, who was found in a dazed condition beside his wrecked automobile on a highway near here.

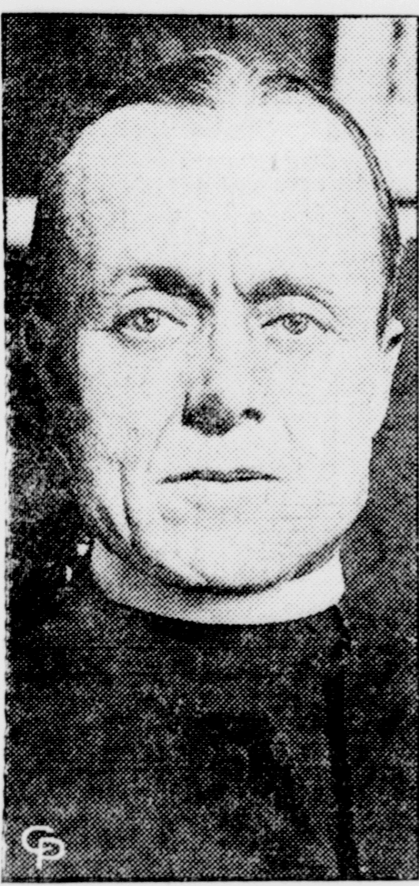

McPhee, while delirious, said he had been slugged and robbed of $1,000. Police were inclined to discredit the story. McPhee will recover.

ATTACK IGNORED

DERBY FLIGHTS ARE CREATING INTEREST AT NATIONAL RACES

Mrs. Thaden Winner Among Women Enters New Race

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, Cleveland, Aug. 27.—Three sets of derby flyers converged on Cleveland today, vying for a place in the sun of the national air races.

One set came from the southland and the other from the far northwest, each bent on zipping as soon as possible across the wide chalk mark that denoted their cross country hops were at an end.

The southern fliers paused today at Louisville, and the northwestern aviators awaited the starter's flag at Milwaukee. The first contingent was due to arrive here at 2 p. m. EST and the latter at 3.

In the third derby five pilots were grooming their motorized mounts at Omaha, Neb., for the second lap of the Oakland, Cal., to Cleveland derby.

At Philadelphia six airplanes are scheduled to get under way today on the first lap of the Philadelphia-Cleveland Derby over an 874-mile course. They hopped off for Boston, the first stop, today.

In addition to the finish of the two derbies, a women's high speed race in which several of the contestants in the women's air derby will enter, was in store for the first of the afternoon events.

Mrs. Louise McPherson Thaden of Pittsburgh, who yesterday won the women's cross country derby, announced as soon as she stepped from her plane that she would enter the race today and attempt to heap some more honors upon those she won in the derby.

Flying in competition with Mrs. Thaden will be Lady Mary Heath, noted British aviatrix, Thea Rasche, German girl who still nurses hopes of flying the Atlantic, and Elmer Smith, New York woman whose chief delight is flying against time in endurance contests.

Much interest is centered in the flight of an auto-gyro plane scheduled for the afternoon. Its inventor, Senor de La Cueva, a Spaniard, probably will pilot the machine that ascends and descends almost vertically.

Clevelanders followed the course of the Graf Zeppelin today closely as the giant German dirigible is due to appear over the airport late tomorrow. To keep it company will be the Los Angeles, of the same type which will be flown here by its navy crew.

Colorful and exciting as the finish yesterday of the women's air derby was Lee Schoenfeld, non-stop derbyist from Los Angeles, who captured high honors for the day.

Frequently throughout the afternoon, radio announcers shouted that Schoenfeld was expected anytime, described his plane and told what direction he would appear from.

At 5:26 p. m. when everybody was shedding green goggles and preparing to go home to dinner,

Rowland swept into the lead on the Nashville-Louisville lap yesterday after C. D. Bowyer of Westfield, N. J., who led the derbyists into Nashville, was forced to land shortly after the take-off for Louisville.

Rowland, too, narrowly escaped disaster, when he broke his tail skid in landing at Nashville. Bowyer's landing did not eliminate him. He made quick repairs and arrived here shortly after the others.

TRUCKLOAD OF SLOT MACHINES HIJACKED FOLLOWING SEIZURE

Outbreak Occurs In Slot Machine War Near Akron

AKRON, Aug. 27.—Guns were drawn for the first time in the Summit County slot machine war last night when three sedan loads of gunmen hijacked a truckload of slot machines which had been seized by justice court officers.

The holdup came as the climax to a series of raids which followed two days of evidence-collecting by private detectives working for the county's slot machine rights.

Seventy-eight warrants were sworn out before Justice Hubert McElroy of Tallmadge.

One raiding squad, under Constable G. Bailey of Cuyahoga Falls, picked up eighteen slot machines in the Portage Lake district.

Near the city limits three large sedans forced the truck to the side of the road after a chase over the winding Portage Lakes roads.

Twelve men, all armed with pistols, then loaded the machines into their own cars.

A second squad confiscated seven machines before the grape vine telegraph system warned operators of the raids.

The slot machine war broke out several weeks ago with charges by the Westlake Vending Company, Pittsburgh, that the Summit County sheriff was discriminating against their machines and was not confiscating devices distributed by other interests.

BOMBING CAMPAIGN RENEWED AGAINST CHICAGO POLITICIAN

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—The bombing campaign which for nearly a year has been waged against Lawrence F. King, sanitary district trustee and his political associates, was renewed today with the bombing of a two story building owned by King political workers.

The building was owned by Graham and sons, Sellback and Jeffery O. Graham being the active members of the firm. Sellback Graham is King's secretary and a prominent ward leader. The mother of the two Graham was absent from the building which she makes her home. The bomb landed the front and side of the structures.

COLUMBUS EXTENDS KEYS OF CITY TO JUNIOR ORDER MEETING

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 27.—The keys to the city were extended today to members of the Junior Order, United American Mechanics, who formally opened their annual state convention here last night.

Features on today's program were memorial services and the conferring tonight of Orphans' Home degree on 100 candidates. The degree is a new exemplification.

A concert by a forty-piece band from the order's orphan home at Tiffin, opened the initial session last night. Four hundred delegates were in attendance with every county in the state represented.

Among prominent members participating in the proceedings were State Councilor F. R. Barr of Marlin, W. S. Ringenberg of Canton, who will be elevated to the office of councilor; State Senator W. A. Clark of Urbana, secretary and organizer of the Ohio Council; Harry E. Duley of Springfield, past state councilor; Dr. W. L. Wenner, Tiffin, treasurer of the order for thirty years.

The order now has 285 active councils in the state with a total membership of 56,000. Secretary Clark said. Three new counties organized during the year. They were Henry, Holmes and Pickaway, each having one council.

Hamilton County scored the largest increased membership. The Dayton council was listed as the largest in the state with Young American Council, Tiffin, second, and Canton Council, third.

PARACHUTE JUMP HERO HELD IN FILLING STATION ROBBERIES

CLEVELAND, Aug. 27.—Fred Perdue, 20, hero of more than 100 parachute jumps, and one of the star performers at the Cleveland airport during the air races, was under arrest here today, charged with taking part in a half-dozen filling station robberies.

The youthful stunt jumper was arrested last night when he was found loitering in front of a filling station on the west side.

A tiny eagle which he wore in his coat lapel was the slender clue which caused his arrest.

The emblem had been noticed by a night attendant at one of the filling stations robbed on Aug. 21.

DIRIGIBLE NEARLY HITS HIGH TENSION WIRES ON TAKE-OFF

Masterful Handling Saves Ship; Off For Lakehurst

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—The Graf Zeppelin will leave Lakehurst for Friedrichshafen, Germany, its home port, four days after the arrival at the New Jersey naval air station, according to a telegram received today by the Hamburg-American line from E. A. Winkler, its western passenger agent.

MINES FIELD, Los Angeles, Aug. 27.—The German Graf Zeppelin escaped disaster by only a few feet here today as it started a conquest of the North American continent, the final lap of its race around the world.

The great dirigible, victorious over the storms of the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans and the hazards of Europe and Asia, almost met ruin in the network of high tension wires which surround the airport.

Taking off at 3:15 a. m. (EST) for Lakehurst, N. J., where twenty days ago it began its 20,000-mile flight around the globe, the dirigible failed to gain altitude as quickly as anticipated and for a few minutes seemed headed straight for disaster as it approached the wires.

Only the masterly handling and coolness of the veteran airman Commander Dr. Hugo Eckener, already suffering a slight illness from the strain of his long flight, saved the Graf and avoided what might have been a tragic death for the forty-one members of the crew and the sixteen passengers.

While the 125,000 persons at the airport gasped as the dirigible neared the deadly wires, the commander lifted his ship suddenly, swerved dangerously and cleared the wires by a scant ten feet.

In view of the fact that the Graf was moving so slowly, experts were unanimous in their praise of the skillful maneuver.

The experts believed that a strata of cold air was responsible for the situation. Dr. Eckener apparently had intended to permit the gas in his craft to lift it to a sufficient height to clear the wires. Something, however, probably a cold draught, held the Graf lower to the ground, with the tail almost touching. As the motors took hold the Graf's tail was still low.

Aware that the tail was not high enough to pass over the wires, Dr. Eckener leveled out his ship and drove its nose directly toward the network, bringing the tail up. Then he once again elevated the nose and the ship passed on safely.

Commander Eckener had landed his craft here after completing the first air passenger crossing of the Pacific from Tokyo, hoped to reach Lakehurst within two days and thereby break the present record of twenty-three days for a round world trip established in 1923 by John Henry Mears and the late Captain C. B. D. Collier.

A dense fog, similar to that through which the Graf made its appearance at San Francisco, hung over the airport as the dirigible cut loose from its mooring mast.

CHILDREN REVEAL KIDNAPING STORY

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 27.—County authorities today were inclined to discredit the story of two children who said they saw a Negro kidnap a white girl in northeast Columbus late yesterday.

The children, Kathryn Echelberger, 13, and her brother George, said they were picking berries when they came upon the couple. The Negro, they said, bound and gagged the girl, placed her in a blue sedan and drove away.

Kathryn said the girl, apparently about 23, was dressed in a blue and white uniform, presumably that of a nurse. The negro was about 40 years old and dressed in brown, she said.

CONNEAUT GUN CLUB BUILDING WRECKED

CONNEAUT, O., Aug. 27.—Police today had only meagre clues to work with in solving the mysterious blast which destroyed the Conneaut Rod and Gun club building, three miles west of Conneaut.

Fifteen sticks of dynamite were used to blow up the club building, the sheriff reported. The explosive had been placed in the fire place of the dining room.

The blast ripped out the walls of the clubhouse and the roof caved in. Wreckage was blown for many hundreds of feet.

Outbreak Occurs In Slot Machine War Near Akron

AKRON, Aug. 27.—Guns were drawn for the first time in the Summit County slot machine war last night when three sedan loads of gunmen hijacked a truckload of slot machines which had been seized by justice court officers.

The holdup came as the climax to a series of raids which followed two days of evidence-collecting by private detectives working for the "outsiders" in the war for the county's slot machine rights.

Seventy-eight warrants were sworn out before Justice Hubert McElroy of Tallmadge.

One raiding squad, under Constable G. Bailey of Cuyahoga Falls, picked up eighteen slot machines in the Portage Lake district. Near the city limits three large sedans forced the truck to the side of the road after a chase over the winding Portage Lakes roads. Twelve men, all armed with pistols, then loaded the machines into their own cars.

A second squad confiscated seven machines before the grape vine telegraph system warned operators of the raid.

The slot machine war broke out several weeks ago with charges by the Westlake Vending Company, Pittsburgh, that the Summit County sheriff was discriminating against their machines and was not confiscating devices distributed by other interests.

DIRIGIBLE NEARLY HITS HIGH TENSION WIRES ON TAKE-OFF

Masterful Handling Saves Ship; Off For Lakehurst

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—The Graf Zeppelin will leave Lakehurst for Friedrichshafen, Germany, its home port, four days after the arrival at the New Jersey naval station, according to a telegram received today by the Hamburg-American line from E. A. Winkler, its western passenger agent.

MINES FIELD, Los Angeles, Aug. 27.—The German Graf Zeppelin escaped disaster by only a few feet here today as it started a conquest of the North American continent, the final lap of its race around the world.

The great dirigible, victorious over the storms of the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans and the hazards of Europe and Asia, almost met ruin in the network of high tension wires which surround the airport.

Taking off at 3:15 a. m. (EST) for Lakehurst, N. J., where twenty days ago it began its 20,000-mile flight around the globe, the dirigible failed to gain altitude as quickly as anticipated and for a few minutes seemed headed straight for disaster as it approached the wires.

Only the masterly handling and coolness of the veteran airman Commander Dr. Hugo Eckener, already suffering a slight illness from the strain of his long flight, saved the Graf and avoided what might have been a tragic death for the forty-one members of the crew and the sixteen passengers.

While the 125,000 persons at the airport gasped as the dirigible neared the deadly wires, the commander lifted his ship suddenly, swerved dangerously and cleared the wires by a scant ten feet.

In view of the fact that the Graf was moving so slowly, experts were unanimous in their praise of the skillful maneuver.

The experts believed that a strata of cold air was responsible for the situation. Dr. Eckener apparently had intended to permit the gas in his craft to lift it to a sufficient height to clear the wires. Something, however, probably a cold draught, held the Graf lower to the ground, with the tail almost touching. As the motors took hold the Graf's tail was still low.

Aware that the tail was not high enough to pass over the wires, Dr. Eckener leveled out his ship and drove its nose directly toward the network, bringing the tail up. Then he once again elevated the nose and the ship passed on safely.

Commander Eckener, who only eighteen hours before had landed his craft here after completing the first air passenger crossing of the Pacific from Tokyo, hoped to reach Lakehurst within two days and thereby break the present record of twenty-three days for a round the world trip established in 1928 by John Henry Mears and the late Captain C. B. D. Collyer.

A dense fog, similar to that through which the Graf made its appearance at San Francisco, hung over the airport as the dirigible cut loose from its mooring mast.

CHILDREN REVEAL KIDNAPING STORY

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 27.—County authorities today were inclined to discredit the story of two children who said they saw a Negro kidnap a white girl in northeast Columbus late yesterday.

The children, Kathryn Echelberger, 13, and her brother George, said they were picking berries when they came upon the couple. The Negro, they said, bound and gagged the girl, placed her in a blue sedan and drove away.

Kathryn said the girl, apparently about 23, was dressed in a blue and white uniform, presumably that of a nurse. The Negro was about 40 years old and dressed in brown, she said.

"NEWSPAPER MAN" NAMED. An unnamed "newspaper man" has so entralled the defendant that she has become dissatisfied with her married life, and has left him, taking their two children, Russell Anderson alleges in asking for a divorce from Ruth Anderson.

His wife entertained the "newspaper man" in their home during his absence in the summer of 1929, has attempted to have the plaintiff leave her, so that she might devote all her attention to the "newspaper man," and three weeks ago left him, refusing to return or to permit him to see the children, Anderson declares. The defendant alleges "has become unreasonably dissatisfied with her marriage, and relies on the promises of the 'newspaper man' to show her a more entertaining life." In addition, he declares that during the last two years, the defendant has left their home, staying away for periods of several weeks at a time, during which he was forced to prepare his own meals.

The Andersons were married November 15, 1923, the petition recites.

THE CORN BORER

As to the Corn Borer Quarantine from the farmer's standpoint, we are doing all we can to keep the worm in the cob from going from infested territory to clean territory. That worm has to run the gauntlet of the stew kettle, being eaten by stock living over winter, to produce the moth that lays the eggs the next summer. So our quarantine is just one season ahead of the danger.

JUDGE SMITH FILES FOR JURIST RACE

Judge E. Dawson Smith, of the law firm of Smith and Smith, is the first candidate for the new municipal judgeship, to file his declaration with the board of elections.

Judge Smith's petition was placed on file with R. E. Dunkel, clerk of the board several days ago. Judge Smith held the office of police court judge by appointment under the charter, for eight years, being succeeded by a mayor under an emergency provision when the courts held that a court established by city charter, and an appointive judgeship were unconstitutional. He was the only official to hold that office.

Attorney James P. Kyle, who filed his petition for the office to go before the primary, was disqualified from running at the primary because he had no opposition for the nomination. He is expected to declare his candidacy to go before the voters at the general election.

In addition, he declares that during the last two years, the defendant has left their home, staying away for periods of several weeks at a time, during which he was forced to prepare his own meals.

THE CORN BORER

Editor, The Gazette:

As to the Corn Borer Quarantine from the farmer's standpoint, we are doing all we can to keep the worm in the cob from going from infested territory to clean territory. That worm has to run the gauntlet of the stew kettle, being eaten by stock, living over winter, to produce the moth that lays the eggs the next summer. So our quarantine is just one season ahead of the danger.

Now I ask you, have we an effective quarantine. Moths are attracted by light; our highways are lined by lights every night. What measures are in force to keep half a dozen moths from lighting on a machine in infested territory, being carried twenty, thirty or fifty miles into clean territory, and begin laying eggs immediately.

Have we an effective quarantine? C. K. WOLF.

MANY WILL ATTEND NATIONAL I. G. A. CONVENTION SOON

A large delegation of I. G. A. dealers and salesmen from Xenia and surrounding territory will attend the National I. G. A. convention, September 2 to 6 at West Baden, Ind.

The convention, which will be the sixth held by this rapidly growing organization, will be unique in that it will be a convention without a single speech outside of a formal address of welcome. All of the features of the convention will be presented in the form of dramatization or special movies. A great quantity of "props" that will be used for the presentation of the various phases of the I. G. A. work has been sent to West Baden preparatory to the convention.

Prizes amounting to $10,000 will be distributed at the convention. The contest includes I. G. A. members and salesmen.

A soft ball contest, in which The Eavey Co. won the national championship last year, is another event which the local delegation is anticipating with much interest. A silver loving cup is the trophy.

A trade show in which 125 national manufacturers will be represented will be held in connection with the convention. The retailers will hold their sessions Monday and Tuesday, September 2 and 3, and the wholesale supply dealers will meet Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, H. E. Eavey, president of The Eavey Co., is chairman of buying committee of the national organization.

Several members from distant parts of the country are planning to attend the convention by airplane. Mr. Crause, of the Crause Grocery Co., of Buffalo, N. Y., was a passenger on the Graf Zeppelin when it made its return trip to Germany.

National conventions have been held by the I. G. A. organization at Rochester, N. Y., Minneapolis, Wis., Lincoln, Neb., Portland Me., and New Orleans.

Judge E. Dawson Smith, of the law firm of Smith and Smith, is the first candidate for the new municipal judgeship, to file his declaration with the board of elections.

Judge Smith held the office of police court judge by appointment under the charter, for eight years, being succeeded by a mayor under an emergency provision when the courts held that a court established by city charter, and an appointive judgeship were unconstitutional. He was the only official to hold that office.

Attorney James P. Kyle, who filed his petition for the office to go before the primary, was disqualified from running at the primary because he had no opposition for the nomination. He is expected to declare his candidacy to go before the voters at the general election.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy every mother should know about Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

Tell's harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour-belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic.

As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York N. Y.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Contrasts for Conquests—Ye have heard that it hath been said, An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth: But I say unto you, That ye resist not evil: but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also.—Matthew 5:38, 39.

"Thou art the Truth: Thy Word Alone True wisdom can impart."

BANQUETS WORST OF ALL

What is the greatest inconvenience of high office? Gen. Primo de Rivera, premier of Spain, asked this question, comes right out and tells the plain truth. It is banquets. His plaint deserves to be preserved as a classic.

"Nothing annoys me more than banquets," he says. "Both official and private ones. The worst of all is that I have to attend about two a day, without being able to avoid them unless I wish to lose contact with the country and forfeit party support. It is quite evident that every banquet enlists a new sector of the country or a new group of friends, but at the cost of my health and nerves."

"There is no suffering equal to that of having to surrender the meal that one desires and the form of eating that one enjoys, just to discover oneself in front of new dishes and customs, and this daily without end."

"During a banquet two of the guests, one on my right and the other on my left, get my ear, and relate things to me that are of the utmost importance to themselves, which they wish me to decide in their favor immediately, and in the form convenient to them."

"I haven't a moment's rest. Yet at the end I am supposed to speak on matters appropriate to the occasion which, to be well done, requires forethought if not study."

It is a terrible life. And the blunt general, with all his frankness, omitted the worst terror of all—listening to the other orators' speeches.

The ancient Romans started something of which they little recked the end, when they began holding big banquets. But one thing, at least, redeemed those old Roman banquets. They were not oratorical marathons.

Europe is still trying to understand the secret of American prosperity. So is America. But the two will never agree about it. Most of us think it's our superior ability and merit, and most Europeans think it's dumb luck.

There's $500,000,000 a year paid in gasoline taxes in this country, and to hear some motorists talk, you'd think they paid it all.

It appears that Harry F. Sinclair has had enough and wants a pardon. Does he think an offender can get out of jail any time he gets tired of being shut up?

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK—If you think that the majority rules in a democracy, stand at any busy street corner in New York when there's no traffic on duty and note the brazen disregard the Thousands On Wheels manifest for the Millions On Foot.

A GRAND DUCHESS ARRIVES
The Grand Duchess Marie Pavlovna of Russia, daughter of Grand Duke Paul, brother of Czar Nick, the second, has come to The Land of the Comparatively Free and the Home of the Undoubtedly Brave, to make an intensive study of American money and its eccentric habits.

The Grand Duchess is going to act as style expert for a swank Fifth Avenue shop, and getting away to a good start, she says:

"The women of America deserve dresses in which are expressed something of the spirit of the great city's skyline."

Read that over carefully, try to analyze it, and if you can make an atom of sense out of it, I'll kiss a pig.

In the first place, the only time the New York skyline is worthy looking at twice is when it's dimmed by the pall of soft coal smoke from the harbor craft and the town's million chimneys. A sporadic, clear, sunlit view discloses a group of huddled angularities calculated for wide horizons.

You never get a quint at the skyline unless you get off somewhere down The Bay. Scurrying through the city's packed, narrow, noisy thoroughfares and shadowy canyons, no denizen is even vaguely conscious of the huddled horror of roof tops that desecrate the smiling sky.

"Duchess," say I, "no matter how thin you slice it, it's still boloney!"

LOVERS' HAVEN MOVED
In the Museum of Art there is a statue known as "The Two Natures of Man." Stationed for years in front of an alcove under the main stairway, and behind this broad, projecting piece of art was a store bench. There, lovers have been in the habit of repairing to "talk it over."

"Heaven only knows how many little Bronx flats and Greenwich Village dumps had their Genesis in the sheltered shade of 'The Two Natures of Man.'"

The other day an Art Boy on the Museum's staff—with a Van Dyke beard and a ribbon on his glasses—discerned a lad and a lassie swapping Love's eternal lie, and next day "The Two Natures of Man" was carted off to Wing K and replaced by the figure of a lady, so narrow that even a Professional Reformer couldn't hide behind it.

(Note: Those wishing to plight a troth in the classic environs of the Museum of Art might try out the plaster reproduction of the Tomb of Penneb. Give it a trial before going elsewhere.)

A SIGN FOR ADVENTURE
A young correspondence school detective received a severe reprimand and a suspended sentence the other day for gum-shoeing along the busy haunts of men with a Police Positive 22 caliber revolver neatly tucked in his starboard blask pocket.

Hounded by the police, terrorized by the magisterial drone of organized platitudes, youth still pursues its dark trade of dabbling in adventure.

And what a drab place the world will be when there are no more false whiskers, rubber-soled sneakers, amateur fingerprint outfits, shining badges, nickel-plated flashlights, Police Positive 22's, correspondence school detective certificates, and when the last of the Philo Gubbs has slid down the long grease chute of Oblivion!

But thank heaven the end is not in sight. Dreams of adventure, high hopes and golden wishes still flutter among the chimney pots and brood about the grimy window planes of The Third Floor Back, as in the days when O. Henry, seeking romance in the "Bagdad on the Subway," came upon it hidden among high-stepped, dingy boardrooms laboring under an air of melancholy decay, like so many overripe squashes.

And the course he mapped has yet to be re-charted.

THE IMPORTANT NOSE

Pleasing the nose costs Americans hundreds of millions of dollars a year. Men engaged in making and selling powder, rouge, soap, perfume and all sorts of toilet articles say the first thing the customer does with a package offered for sale is to smell of it. If he likes the odor he is likely to buy.

It is estimated $500,000,000 will be spent by Americans in 1929 on soap, cosmetics and the like. Nose appeal is powerful.

AMERICA

Some say America was discovered by an Irishman in the sixth century. Others say Ericson, a Scandian, was the first white man to set foot on our soil. That was somewhere near the year 1000. Most of us give Christopher Columbus, Italian, the credit. At any rate, whoever it was, were he to come back today he would admit that he "hadn't seen nothing."

CONTACT

There is no substitute for contact in selling. Don't trust an important piece of business to the telephone. No dotted lines can be filled in at long distance. You may be a poor talker, but you are a worse one over the phone. Selling isn't all words. It's magnetism and personal contact.

A BIG GESTURE

When William R. Harper became president of Chicago university many years ago he had vision. He was a man of tremendous imagination. He saw a great university in the making. All it lacked and all he lacked was money. He met with his associates. They wanted to ask John D. Rockefeller for $100,000. One man, more daring, wanted to ask Mr. Rockefeller for $200,000. Harper sat silent. At the end he said: "I will tell Mr. Rockefeller I do not care to undertake the job here without one million dollars."

Now the point of this story is that Harper got the million dollars. And other millions came on later from Mr. Rockefeller. Probably it would never have happened if a man with imagination hadn't been on the job.

If you can't think big and see big, you won't do big things. Don't make little gestures. Leave them to little men.

PROHIBITION DECLARED MOST SATISFACTORY

By F. SCOTT MCBRIDE

General Superintendent, Anti-Saloon League of America
Francis Scott McBride was born in Carroll county, Ohio, July 29, 1872. He is a graduate of Muskingum college and Pittsburgh Theological Seminary. In 1901 he was ordained in the ministry of the United Presbyterian church. He was a pastor at Kittanning, Pa., from 1901 to 1909, and at Monmouth, Ill., from 1909 to 1911. He rose from district to state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league of Illinois, holding the latter post from 1912 to 1924. In that year he was made general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league of America. He is located at Westerville, O.

Prohibition today stands as the most satisfactory solution in 100 years of seeking for an answer to the alcohol question.

Before the prohibition law was passed the liquor traffic was growing. Something had to be done. Prohibition came as the answer.

The per capita consumption of liquor grew, until it reached 22 gallons per person every year. If your father, mother, sister or father drank that much more, the cold facts were that the United States of America was going on a great drunken debauch. Something had to be done.

There are several reasons why we should uphold the eighteenth amendment. I might list them as follows:

1—Prohibition puts weight of law back of the program to prohibit alcoholic liquors as a beverage.

2—The people of the United States, under orderly government, are back of prohibition. Statistics show that passage of prohibition amendment was achieved by the united efforts of county, city, state and nation.

There never has been a proposition written into the constitution by a larger expression of the people. And in 1928 the driest man who ever ran for the presidency of the United States was sent to the White House.

3—Prohibition takes the liquor interests out of politics.

I have lived long enough in Illinois and have been superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league in Illinois long enough to drive the liquor traffic out of Illinois politics.

I can walk into the heart of Chicago and prove that prohibition at its worst is better than the days of the saloon.

4—We should uphold the eighteenth amendment because of the uniformity of nation wide prohibition.

5—Prohibition is economically right. It takes care of both the laborer and the manufacturer.

6—Because the saloon is a curse on American life.

7—Because prevention is placed in the forefront of the law.

8—Because prohibition tunes in to the mechanical age in which we live. Gasoline and alcohol do not mix.

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

It is surprising how frequently the neck is neglected—allowed to wither and grow old, even by women who spend hours in caring for and beautifying their faces! Yet the neck is one of beauty's greatest assets—and one of the first places to show age. The neck should be a lovely marble column. Too frequently it is corded and wrinkled—a tell-tale of age and neglect.

Creams and lotions should be just as carefully applied to the neck as to the face. In applying cream, cup the hands, come down under the chin and lightly—very lightly—down the front of the neck. Now turn your hands and apply your cream up the back of the neck with a firm pressure. Always avoid any pressure over the "Adam's" apple.

Work the cream in with little rotary movements, sliding the fingers over the skin—never moving the skin with the fingers. Unlike the face, the neck should be carefully anointed with a rich cream before you retire and the cream should be left on over night.

You can give yourself a splendid neck treatment. First apply your cream, then bend your head forward until the chin rests upon your chest. If you have not been in the habit of exercising your neck, you will feel a decided pull down to the middle of your back! Now, keeping the chin touching the chest, slowly circle to the shoulder, twist your head up, stretching the neck back as much as possible, and circle the back. At left shoulder, twist the head again, coming back with the chin on the chest. Repeat ten times, night and morning, and you will be surprised at the difference a month will make in the appearance of your neck. And incidentally, as the neck is the connecting link between the body and the head, and as the blood must pass through the neck to reach the head, this exercise is splendid for your face and your hair, as well as for the neck! It stimulates the circulation, and as I've said so frequently, the blood is the most important source of beauty.

Describe a circle with the point of the chin, from the base of the neck, reaching directly out in front, in much the same manner as you would peddle a bicycle, is also an excellent neck exercise.

These are basic exercises, good for both the straggly neck and the too-fat one, building up in one case, breaking down in the other.

The three basic principles of skin care are just as important for the neck as for the face. You remember these three fundamentals are daily cleansing and lubricating, clearing and animating, toning and bracing. And in addition to these three basic principles, as the neck becomes discolored so easily from sun and wind, it needs frequent bleaching. If you use a beautifying skin food to clear and animate your face, by all means use it on your neck also. Or you can keep a jar of bleaching cream handy and use it whenever your mirror tells you that your neck is becoming darker than your face. Or if you wish to go to the bother, you may use one part lemon juice to three parts of water and bathe the neck in this; but be sure to counteract its drying effect with an after application of good, rich cream.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Ramsay MacDonald & Co. are not as much interested in naval reduction as Washington had expected they would be.

The United States cannot warble a successful armament limitation solo.

At least an Anglo-American duet is essential to give the right effect. Some other sea powers can improve it by joining in and yodeling in chorus.

On the other hand, Japan, for instance, can spoil it all with a few sour notes—which, however, Tokyo shows no disposition to do in the present instance. Nippon is harmonious enough.

But anyway, as the world's two great maritime nations, this country and Britain are absolutely essential.

At first the Washington administration had high hopes of Premier MacDonald labor government in London.

While the Tories, under Stanley Baldwin's premiership, remained at the English helm, it was recognized that little real progress could be made toward warship curtailment. They always were willing to discuss it but they invariably insisted on impossible conditions.

The British labor folk were supposed to be genuinely pacific.

Accordingly the White House let out a 40-horsepower trumpet blast for a big armament cut directly following Mr. MacDonald's installation in office. It was assumed that acquiescent echo would tie it for first place immediately.

9—Because none of the alternatives offered will solve liquor problems.

less than a dozen million dollars a year—not a very formidable sum for a country like England.

Maybe Mr. Snowden's blood-curdling language had more to do with the excitement than the size of the stake involved.

Anyhow, it fails to hint at the red hot arms curtailment fervor which Washington had taken for granted in the British Isles. If it had existed, attention could scarcely have been distracted from it so easily.

Plenty of personal credit is given to Premier MacDonald as an exceptionally fair-minded Briton.

When it comes to naval negotiations with the British, however, the impression is usually strong, in Washington just now that allowances will have to be made for the ingrained prejudices of the original John Bull, under any premier, for a long while to come.

Today's Recipes
Oatmeal Drop Cookies—One cup lard, one and one-half cups sugar, three eggs, cinnamon, cloves, allspice, one cup buttermilk, one teaspoon each soda and baking powder, salt, equal parts rolled oats and flour, one cup raisins. Mix rather stiff and drop on tins. Bake slowly. Chopped peanuts may be added for variety.

Cream Cake—One cup sugar, two eggs, one cup thick sour cream, one teaspoon soda, one teaspoon lemon extract, two cups flour. Pour in tube tin, sprinkle sugar over top and bake one hour. Needs no frosting.

Hamburgers—One pound ground beef, one small onion, one egg, salt, pepper, sage, one thick slice bread soaked in milk. Mix all rather soft and place tablespoonfuls in hot greased skillet. Fry brown on both sides.

Suggestions
Air Mattresses
The systematic housewife will see to it that all the mattresses in her household are well aired each day and turned frequently so that both sides will receive equal wear. Every mattress should be protected by a layer of bed sheets on all sides or a snugly fitting washable mattress cover. There should be a sufficient supply on hand so that they may be laundered and replaced frequently by fresh, clean covers.

Important Trifles
Fruits canned in too thick a syrup shrink and rise to the top of the jar.

The baby's first shoes should have flat, flexible soles, pliable tops and broad toes.

WILL POWER SLIPPING

"DEAR DOCTOR: I am a physical training teacher and I have to practice what I preach. I have lost 23 pounds by following your instructions, and did that easily enough. I still have 17 pounds more to lose, but I find myself slipping and do not seem to have the will power that I had at the beginning. Can you suggest something to help me?"

"MRS. B."

You and I are in the same boat, Mrs. B.—we both must be good examples of what we preach. You know, if you have reduced before, that you can reduce again, so it's simply a question of beginning and sticking to it. Just say you are going to reduce at least one and one-quarter pounds more than that, to make up for the time when you don't reduce so much. Once, when I was going through a struggle similar to yours, I was tempted by a very delicious meal, and was on the verge of deciding that I would postpone my dieting until tomorrow, when the thought came very vividly, "It won't be any easier tomorrow!" That little thought saved me. Try it. I think if you will force yourself to go through at least one day of liquid diet, not over 700 calories, say, that it is easier to start, but if you don't want to do that, just start immediately on your reducing number.

Perhaps you can swear off on certain fattening things you indulge in. That's certainly a good plan for those of us who have to fight overweight. We have to fight our food tastes permanently or else we will gain again after reducing.

Have your pamphlet which gives instructions for gaining and losing weight, Mrs. B.? If not, see column rules for obtaining it.

"My husband has a lot of fine warts on his neck, and it looks terrible from shaving, as he cuts the tops of the warts off. Every once in a while he goes to the barber's to have them burned off, but they always come back. Will you please give him some advice?"

"MRS. S."

Warts that do not respond to simple home remedies, such as daily application with iodine, baking soda, etc., or other antiseptics, should be treated by a dermatologist (a physician who specializes in skin diseases). Mrs. S. You didn't give your husband's age, but in the middle-aged and elderly there may be skin warts on the face and neck that have cancerous possibilities if continuously irritated, so he shouldn't be going to a barber for treatment.

"I am a girl of 15 and have little red pimples all over my legs, from the knees down to the ankles. It looks as if the pores on my legs are infected because they are so red. Will you please tell me what to do for this?"

There is probably a low-grade infection on your legs, coupled with a dryness of the skin. Try giving them a very thorough scrub with hot water, soap and a scrub brush every day, and then apply a glycerine solution—one-fourth glycerine to three-fourths water. You'll have to keep this up for a long while before you will see results.

Have you noticed the eruption is worse after any particular food? If so, you may have an idiosyncrasy to that food.

How is your general health? You had better have a physical check-up. Be sure to get plenty of sleep and rest, and the normal diet.

We have an article on Balanced Diet which you may have.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"She was my woman, and every man must have a woman like that. (Just as every woman must have a man.) One beloved beyond all others they may love. It's a partnership." * * *

The act of loving is a creative force.

How many people, I wonder, have the "grande passion." Something binding and magnificent that makes them feel that they have indeed lived. Well, it's wonderful, and the joy of it may be worth all the heartache that such a passion also brings.

Most of us content ourselves, with a steadier and clearer flame that lights our way, and only cherish the remembrance of such a violent emotion.

BILLIE: I am so glad you have found my advice helpful, and am sorry I had no chance to answer your last letter before. I wonder if you are not a bit too trusting to think you can marry this young man and be happy. What assurance have you that he would be true after his experiences with other women?

I am afraid my pride would be hurt to think that he thought I would take him back after lavishing gifts and love or was it not rather passion? On this woman, as if you, too, would not demand the same honor and cleanness in your husband that he would ask of a wife. Possibly the reason that he is not more affectionate in his ways when he is with you is that he doesn't trust himself. He knows you would resent any but the right kind of demonstration, and he thinks it better not to be too loving.

I think it quite possible that he really forgot your birthday, impossible as it seems to you. Some people always remember such things and others never do, even when you are sure they know about them. I wonder if you did remember his? It would be all right to do so if you felt you wanted to.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a girl in my late teens. I like a boy one year my senior. When he is in trouble or hasn't time to do something he comes to me and I help him, although my parents and friends say I am foolish. He goes with other girls but never asks me for a date. When speaking of me he calls me his 'pal.' How could I get him to like me well enough to ask me for a date?"

"Our birthdays are on the same day and we planned to have a party. For some time he has treated me very coldly. Should I go ahead with our plans or not?"

PAL:

I think I would not go ahead with the party plans, dear. He probably thinks you will always be at his beck and call when he needs you, and I would let him see that I have feelings just like other girls, if I were you.

If he doesn't mention the party say nothing and let the day go unmarked. The next time he wants you to do something for him, say you are very sorry but you are busy, or ask him to do something for you. He takes you too much for granted and should be made to realize that true palship is a 50-50 proposition.

The ways of some fathers are hard to understand. SOME only, thank goodness, for most fathers are pretty wonderful, aren't they, considering all they have to bother them?

"MY DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a steady reader of your column and have just read of the trouble 'Disputed Kids' have with their father. I have a father like him, only worse, and I think that the only thing for these girls to do is to quit high school and go to work. They should go to business school or night, finishing their education that way."

My father never spoke to me on the street. He said he was ashamed of me. When I was hit by a car he said he hoped I croaked. (It's not a nice expression, but true. When a boy expressed his sympathy over the accident I was called a bum in front of him.)

"When I wanted to give him my first pay he threw it across the table and said that that wouldn't pay his bills. My only solution was that at the age of 17 years I quit talking to him, and get married at 21. I now have three children, a nice home, and although I don't talk to him yet, he adores my babies."

A READER:
And I bet he'd be surprised to know how you remember all the hateful things he said and he'd be sure he didn't say them. He is probably taking credit to himself for you and your lovely babies. Odd, human nature, isn't it?

"In a muff turned inside out, I should say," chuckled Peter, who had a strong imagination and didn't think he'd care to stay long in a house under such conditions. "Rather ticklish, I should say!"

"Mrs. Wood Bee thinks it's quite the thing!" laughed Mrs. Mason Bee. "Then there's still another cousin, who papers the walls of her home with green leaves. That's a pretty notion!"

Contrasts for Conquests—Ye have heard that it hath been said, An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth; But I say unto you, That ye resist not evil; but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also.—Matthew 5:38, 39.

BANQUETS WORST OF ALL

What is the greatest inconvenience of high office? Gen. Primo de Rivera, premier of Spain, asked this question, comes right out and tells the plain truth. It is banquets. His plaint deserves to be preserved as a classic.

"Nothing annoys me more than banquets," he says. "Both official and private ones. The worst of all is that I have to attend about two a day, without being able to avoid them unless I wish to lose contact with the country and forfeit party support. It is quite evident that every banquet enlists a new sector of the country or a new group of friends, but at the cost of my health and nerves."

"There is no suffering equal to that of having to surrender the meal that one desires and the form of eating that one enjoys, just to discover oneself in front of new dishes and customs, and this daily without end."

"During a banquet two of the guests, one on my right and the other on my left, get my ear, and relate things to me that are of the utmost importance to themselves, which they wish me to decide in their favor immediately, and in the form convenient to them."

"I haven't a moment's rest. Yet at the end I am supposed to speak on matters appropriate to the occasion which, to be well done, requires forethought if not study."

It is a terrible life. And the blunt general, with all his frankness, omitted the worst terror of all—listening to the other orators' speeches.

The ancient Romans started something of which they little recked the end, when they began holding big banquets. But one thing, at least, redeemed those old Roman banquets. They were not oratorical marathons.

Europe is still trying to understand the secret of American prosperity. So is America. But the two will never agree about it. Most of us think it's our superior ability and merit, and most Europeans think it's dumb luck.

A GRAND DUCHESS ARRIVES

The Grand Duchess Marie Pavlovna of Russia, daughter of Grand Duke Paul, brother of Czar Nick, the Second, has come to The Land of the Comparatively Free and the Home of the Undoubtedly Brave to make an intensive study of American money and its eccentric habits.

The Grand Duchess is going to act as style expert for a swank Fifth Avenue shop, and getting away to a good start, she says: "The women of America deserve dresses in which are expressed something of the spirit of the great city's skyline."

Read that carefully, try to analyze it, and if you can make an atom of sense out of it, I'll kiss a pig.

In the first place, the only time the New York skyline is worthy looking at twice is when it's dimmed by the pall of soft coal smoke from the harbor craft and the town's million chimneys. A sporadic, clear, sunlit view discloses a group of huddled angularities calculated for wide horizons.

Men engaged in making and selling powder, rouge, soap, perfume and all sorts of toilet articles say the first thing the customer does with a package offered for sale is to smell of it. Just say you are going to reduce at least one and one-quarter pounds a week, and perhaps some weeks more than that, to make up for the time when you don't reduce so much. Once, when I was going through a struggle similar to yours, I was tempted by a very delicious meal, and was on the verge of deciding that I would postpone my dieting until tomorrow, when the thought came very vividly, "It won't be any easier tomorrow!" That little thought saved me. Try it. I think if you will force yourself to go through at least one day of liquid diet, not over 700 calories, say, that it is easier to start, but if you don't want to do that, just start immediately on your reducing number.

Perhaps you can swear off on certain fattening things you indulge in. That's certainly a good plan for those of us who have to fight overweight. We have to fight our food tastes permanently or else we will gain again after reducing.

Have you our pamphlet which gives instructions for gaining and losing weight, Mrs. B.? If not, see column rules for obtaining it.

"My husband has a lot of fine warts on his neck, and it looks terrible from shaving, as he cuts the tops of the warts off. Every once in a while he goes to the barber's to have them burned off, but they always come back. Will you please give him some advice?"

"MRS. S."

Warts that do not respond to simple home remedies, such as daily application with iodine, baking soda, etc., or other antiseptics, should be treated by a dermatologist (a physician who specializes in skin diseases). Mrs. S. You didn't give your husband's age, but in the middle-aged and elderly there may be skin warts on the face and neck that have cancerous possibilities if continuously irritated, so he shouldn't be going to a barber for treatment.

"I am a girl of 15 and have little red pimples all over my legs, from the knees down to the ankles. It looks as if the pores on my legs are infected because they are so red. Will you please tell me what to do for this?"

There is probably a low-grade infection of your legs, coupled with a dryness of the skin. Try giving them a very thorough scrub with hot water, soap and a scrub brush every day, and then apply a glycerine solution—one-fourth glycerine to three-fourths water. You'll have to keep this up for a long while before you will see results.

Have you noticed the eruption is worse after an particular food? If so, you may have an idiosyncrasy to that food.

How is your general health? You had better have a physical check-up. Be sure to get plenty of sleep and rest, and the normal diet.

We have an article on Balanced Diet which you may have.

Living and Loeing

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"She was my woman, and every man must have a woman like that. (Just as every woman must have a man.) One beloved beyond all others they may love. It's a partnership — * * * The act of loving is a creative force."

How many people, I wonder, have the "grande passion." Something binding and magnificent that makes them feel that they have indeed lived. Well, it's wonderful, and the joy of it may be worth all the heartache that such a passion also brings.

Most of us content ourselves, with a staid and clearer flame that lights our way, and only cherish the remembrance of such a violent emotion.

BILLIE: I am so glad you have found my advice helpful, and am sorry I had no chance to answer your last letter before. I wonder if you are not a bit too trusting to think you can marry this young man and be happy. What assurance have you that he would be true after his experiences with other women?

I am afraid my pride would be hurt to think that he thought I would take him back after lavishing gifts and love for was it not rather passion? On this woman. As if you, too, would not demand the same honor and cleanness in your husband that he would ask of a wife. Possibly the reason that he is not more affectionate in his ways when he is with you is that he doesn't trust himself. He knows you would resent any but the right kind of demonstration, and he thinks it better not to be too loving.

I think it quite possible that he really forgot your birthday, impossible as it seems to you. Some people always remember such things and others never do, even when you are sure they know about them. I wonder if you did remember his? It would be all right to do so if you felt you wanted to.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a girl in my late teens. I like a boy one year my senior. When he is in trouble or hasn't time to do something he comes to me and I help him, although my parents and friends say I am foolish. He goes with other girls but never asks me for a date. When speaking of me he calls me his 'pal.' How could I get him to like me well enough to

"When I wanted to give him my first pay he threw it across the table and said that that wouldn't pay his bills. My only solution was that at the age of 17 years I quit talking to him, and got married at 21. I now have three children, a nice home, and although I don't talk to him yet, he adores my babies."

A READER:

And I bet he'd be surprised to know how you remember all the hateful things he said and he'd be sure he didn't say them. He is probably taking credit to himself for you and your lovely babies. Odd, human nature, isn't it?

"Talk about the finish of the walls!" continued Mrs. Mason Bee, who, evidently, was much interested in the subject of interior decoration. "You should visit another cousin of ours, Boy, Mrs. Wood Bee. She drapes the walls with all the fancy fluffy bits scraped from leaves and ferns and moss and trees. Being in her house is like being in a — in a —"

"In a muff turned inside out, I should say," chuckled Peter, who had a strong imagination and didn't think he'd care to stay long in a house under such conditions. "Rather ticklish, I should say!"

"Mrs. Wood Bee thinks it's quite the thing!" laughed Mrs. Mason Bee. "Then there's still another cousin, who papers the walls of her home with green leaves. That's a pretty notion!"

"Does Cousin Carpenter Bee live near?" asked Dawdler. Then he stood in the doorway shading his eyes with his wing "If my eyes do not deceive me, there's one of the

TRUCK WRECKED

Herbert Campbell, son of Fred Campbell, near Osborn, wrecked his father's truck which he was driving near DeGraff, according to an investigation made by Kenneth Smith, sheriff of Logan County, after the truck was reported stolen. Sheriff Smith said the boy reported the truck had been stolen in order to divert blame from himself for damaging the truck.

Picked Softball Team Will Play Reserves

SPECIAL GAME WILL FEATURE LABOR DAY PROGRAM IN XENIA

Playground Stars To Don Gloves For Regulation Tilt

A regulation baseball game between a picked team from both the National and American Softball Leagues and the Xenia Reserves, will be a feature here Labor Day, it is announced by I. M. Hyman, who is organizing the team to represent the softball leagues.

The game will be played at Washington Park and the gate proceeds will be split, the softball team giving its share of the receipts to the Xenia Playground Ball Commission to help finance activities of the commission for next year.

While the picked team will be selected from among the city's softball teams, the game will be a regulation, hard-ball affair and played according to regulation baseball rules. That the softball players will not be at a disadvantage in this kind of a game is the contention of Hyman, who points to a long list of experienced diamond players enrolled on the playground teams.

Any player in either softball league is eligible to try-out for the picked team, and candidates are asked to turn out Friday evening for practice at Washington Park. Without holding try-outs, it is pointed out, it is easy to find a number of expert ball players now playing in the softball leagues.

Bill LeSourd and Phil Corr of the Downtown Country Club team in the National League, are both ex-colleagues, LeSourd having played with Ohio Wesleyan University while Corr was varsity catcher with the University of Illinois. Dick Wells, of the Hooven and Allison Co. team, is a K. I. O. League pitcher of considerable merit who had long professional and semi-pro experience.

N. Murrell and E. Murrell of the Ropemakers and H. Kersey and D. Kersey of the same team, are both experienced semi-professional ball players. Bill Clemens of the Central High team in the National loop, is a Miami University player. Paul Fuller of the Harneis team in the National loop formerly played with the Pennsylvania Railroad division team. Paul Boxwell of that team is a Wilmington College player. Frank Cain of the same team is a former first baseman for the Reserves and Ernie Randall of the Cigars is also an ex-member of the Reserves. Gene Leashe, Towles, Herman Wells, and a flock of other good regulation ball players may be found on the different league teams and from this nucleus, Hyman believes a team can be developed that should give the Reserves a real scrap on the holiday program.

The softball teams have been playing to as many as 500 fans every evening at Cox Field, the spectators being admitted without charge, and it is believed these fans will patronize the "paid" game in order to help finance next season's softball program. Manager Jess Chambliss of the Reserves also hopes to book a better team here that day to give the fans a double-header program.

Counterpart, the star pacing stallion of Dr. H. M. Marshall, Urbana, which showed to advantage at the Greene County Fair races here, won the Dasher-Wallick Hotel purse of 2-13 pacers, worth $1,200 at the Ohio State Fair opening race program Monday. Counterpart took the first and third heats, setting the best time of 2:05 1/2 in the final heat.

THIEVES ROB HOME OF FAIRFIELD MEN
Thieves who ransacked the home of three air corps soldiers at Harrier's Station near Wilbur Wright Field Monday afternoon, stole goods valued at more than $500. The house is occupied by Sergeant and Mrs. Eugene W. Kendall, Sergeant Frank Donah and Clarence W. Kendall. The robbery is thought to have been committed between 10 o'clock and noon, as Mrs. Kendall was not at home at the time, and learned of the theft when she prepared to set the dinner table. The silverware was all missing and a search of the house revealed that many other articles had been taken, including several high powered army rifles and clothing. The robbery is being investigated by the Montgomery County sheriff.

ROPEMAKERS BLAST TIE TO TAKE LEAD IN AMERICAN LOOP AGAIN

The Hooven and Allison entry in the American Softball League exploded itself out of a tie with the Postoffice for league leadership at Cox Field Monday night, by taking a free-hitting contest from the Rotary Club nine by the score of 24 to 2.

As terrific a hitting campaign as has been uncovered at the yard this season, was unleashed by the heavy artillery of the Ropemakers in their attack upon the enfeebled Rotarians, holders of last place in the loop standing.

While the Ropemakers were blasting themselves out of the tie that encumbered their progress toward the league title, they were also laying down a barrage that effectively prevented retaliatory measures on the part of the cellular occupants, with the result that the victims were shut-out in every inning except the third, when they scored their lone two runs.

The Hooven and Allison nine uncorked a terrific opening inning attack, the side batting around and scoring seven runs on six straight singles and a pair of fielder's choices. They had another big inning in the seventh, when they chased ten runs across the rhomboid by nothing less than heavy hitting.

E. Murrell led the winners' attack with five blows in six visits to the plate, including a double and homeruns were smacked out by N. Murrell, D. Finlay, and Fulkerson. T. McClellan and Stout, each with three hits, bore the burden of the Rotary offensive.

The Harneis Cigars play the Central High team in a National League game at the yard Tuesday evening. Box Score:

FALLS FROM FOURTH FLOOR WINDOW BUT LIVES TO TELL TALE

AKRON, O., Aug. 27. — Thomas Davidson "had a feeling I'm falling" — furthermore Davidson is alive and can tell just what his thoughts were when he tumbled from a fourth floor window to the sidewalk below.

Davidson, a window-washer, was at work on a fourth floor window of the Everett Building here. He fell.

The old theory that a man under such circumstances sees his whole life pass before him in one fleeting instant is false, according to Davidson. Sensation, more than thought, occupied his mind.

"The air got terribly hot," said Davidson. "It burned me."

With no sudden realization that he had slipped from the window sill, a thought flashed through his mind: "I'm gone," Davidson said he thought.

From his bed in St. Francis Hospital Davidson related his unique story.

"I stayed conscious till I was twenty feet from the ground," he said. "Then everything went black."

Davidson did not feel the shock when he struck the pavement; feet foremost with such force that both legs and his spine were snapped. In a half hour he had regained consciousness. He was able to tell attendants how to reach his wife.

Asked what he thought of and how he felt during his fall Davidson replied:

"Maybe you've dreamed of falling. It was just like that. And when you dream of falling you usually wake up before you strike. Well, that's how it was when I passed out—just as if I had been dreaming and then all of a sudden quit."

Davidson, who came to Akron several years ago with his wife from Alabama is 30 years old. For several days after the accident physicians believed he would die. Now it is believed he will live.

TRUCK WRECKED

Herbert Campbell, son of Fred Campbell, near Osborn, wrecked his father's truck which he was driving near DeGraff, according to an investigation made by Kenneth Smith, sheriff of Logan County, after the truck was reported stolen. Sheriff Smith said the boy reported the truck had been stolen in order to divert blame from himself for damaging the truck.

Picked Softball Team Will Play Reserves

SPECIAL GAME WILL FEATURE LABOR DAY PROGRAM IN XENIA

Playground Stars To Don Gloves For Regulation Tilt

A regulation baseball game between a picked team from both the National and American Softball Leagues and the Xenia Reserves, will be a feature here Labor Day, it is announced by I. M. Hyman, who is organizing the team to represent the softball leagues.

The game will be played at Washington Park and the gate proceeds will be split, the softball team giving its share of the receipts to the Xenia Playground Ball Commission to help finance activities of the commission for next year.

While the picked team will be selected from among the city's softball teams, the game will be a regulation, hard-ball affair and played according to regulation baseball rules. That the softball players will not be at a disadvantage in this kind of a game is the contention of Hyman, who points to a long list of experienced diamond players enrolled on the playground teams.

Any player in either softball league is eligible to try out for the picked team, and candidates are asked to turn out Friday evening for practice at Washington Park. Without holding try-outs, it is pointed out, it is easy to find a number of expert ball players now playing in the softball leagues.

Bill LeSourd and Phil Corr of the Downtown Country Club team in the National League, are both ex-colleagues, LeSourd having played with Ohio Wesleyan University while Corr was varsity catcher with the University of Illinois. Dick Wells, of the Hooven and Allison team in the American League is a K. I. O. League pitcher of considerable merit who has had long professional and semi-pro experience.

N. Murrell and E. Murrell of the Ropemakers and H. Kersey and D. Kersey of the same team, are both experienced semi-professional ball players. Bill Clemens of the Central High team in the National loop, is a Miami University player. Paul Fuller of the Harneis team in the National loop formerly played with the Pennsylvania Railroad division team. Paul Boxwell of that team is a Wilmington College player. Frank Cain of the same team is a former first baseman for the Reserves and Ernie Randall of the Cigars is also an ex-member of the Reserves. Gene Leahy, Towles, Herman Wells, and a flock of other good regulation ball players may be found on the different league teams and from this nucleus, Hyman believes a team can be developed that should give the Reserves a real scrap on the holiday program.

The softball teams have been playing to as many as 500 fans every evening at Cox Field, the spectators being admitted without charge, and it is believed these fans will patronize the "paid" game in order to help finance next season's softball program. Manager Jess Chambliss of the Reserves also hopes to book another team here that day to give the fans a double-header program.

COUNTERPART WINS

Counterpart, the star pacing stallion of Dr. H. M. Marshall, Urbana, which showed to advantage at the Greene County Fair races here, won the Deshler-Wallick Hotel purse of 2-13 pacers, worth $1,200 at the Ohio State Fair opening race program Monday. Counterpart took the first and third heats, setting the best time of 2:05 1/2 in the final heat.

ROPEMAKERS BLAST TIE TO TAKE LEAD IN AMERICAN LOOP AGAIN

The Hooven and Allison entry in the American Softball League exploded itself out of a tie with the Postoffice for league leadership at Cox Field Monday night, by taking a free-hitting contest from the Rotary Club nine by the score of 24 to 2.

As terrific a hitting campaign as has been uncovered at the yard this season, was unleashed by the heavy artillery of the Ropemakers in their attack upon the entrenched Rotarians, holders of last place in the loop standing.

While the Ropemakers were blasting themselves out of the tie that encumbered their progress toward the league title, they were also laying down a barrage that effectively prevented retaliatory measures on the part of the subcellular occupants, with the result that the victims were shut-out in every inning except the third, when they scored their lone two runs.

CITY BOWLING LOOP ORGANIZED MONDAY FOR COMING SEASON

Enroll Six Teams; Martin Will Head Organization

E. D. Martin, representing the Hooven and Allison Co. entry was elected chairman of the City Bowling League, when it was reorganized for the coming season at a meeting at the Recreation Parlors Monday evening.

Clark Eckerle, representing the Downtown Country Club, was elected secretary and John Purdom, also of the Downtown Country Club, was made treasurer of the league. The league will be composed of six teams this year instead of four, as was the case last season.

Teams enrolled in the league are: Downtown Country Club, Hooven and Allison Co., Krippeford-Dittman Co., Fuller and Sons, Beckett Auto Co., and Foody Post, American Legion. The first round of season's play will start Thursday, September 12, and the league matches will be rolled on Thursday and Friday nights of each week.

The league will divide time on the alleys Thursday evenings with the recently organized Recreation League, playing one match that night, and will schedule two matches for Friday evenings. A league schedule is now being prepared for the season.

THIEVES ROB HOME OF FAIRFIELD MEN

Thieves who ransacked the home of three air corps soldiers at Harries' Station near Wilbur Wright Field Monday afternoon, stole goods valued at more than $500.

The house is occupied by Sergeant and Mrs. Eugene W. Kendall, Sergeant Frank Donald and Clarence W. Kendall. The robbery is thought to have been committed between 10 o'clock and noon, as Mrs. Kendall was not at home at the time, and learned of the theft when she prepared to set the dinner table. The silverware was all missing, and a search of the house revealed that many other articles had been taken, including several high powered army rifles and clothing.

The robbery is being investigated by the Montgomery County sheriff.

FALLS FROM FOURTH FLOOR WINDOW BUT LIVES TO TELL TALE

AKRON, O., Aug. 27. — Thomas Davidson "had a feeling I'm falling" — furthermore Davidson is alive and can tell just what his thoughts were when he tumbled from a fourth floor window to the sidewalk below.

Davidson, a window-washer, was at work on a fourth floor window of the Everett Building here. He fell.

The old theory that a man under such circumstances sees his whole life pass before him in one fleeting instant is false, according to Davidson. Sensation, more than thought, occupied his mind.

"The air got terribly hot," said Davidson. "It burned me."

With the sudden realization that he had slipped from the window sill, a thought flashed through his mind: "I'm gone," Davidson said he thought.

From his bed in St. Francis Hospital Davidson related his unique story.

"I stayed conscious till I was twenty feet from the ground," he said. "Then everything went black."

Davidson did not feel the shock when he struck the pavement; feet foremost with such force that both legs and his spine were snapped.

In a half hour he had regained consciousness. He was able to tell attendants how to reach his wife.

Asked what he thought of and how he felt during his fall Davidson replied:

"Maybe you've dreamed of falling. It was just like that. And when you dream of falling you usually wake up before you strike. Well, that's how it was when I passed out—just as if I had been dreaming and then all of a sudden quit."

Davidson, who came to Akron several years ago with his wife from Alabama is 30 years old. For several days after the accident physicians believed he would die. Now it is believed he will live.

CHATTY—GODDESS OF GAB
BEATRICE BURTON, Author of: "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," "SALLY'S SHOULDERS," "MONEY LOVE," "LOVE BOUND," ETC.
COPYRIGHT 1929, CENTRAL PRESS ASS'N. INC., CLEVELAND, OHIO.

READ THIS FIRST:
Charlotte Chatterton, nicknamed Chatty, is a born gossip and busy-body. She loses her job in Mrs. Mayberry's millinery because she talked too much. Her widowed mother, a dressmaker, has one wealthy customer, Mrs. Van Nuy, an old friend. Through Mrs. "Van" Chatty gets a new job in Mr. "Van's" bond house, down town. There she meets and falls in love with Dave Jordan, a bond salesman, whom she once saw buying flowers for a girl in a shop near Mrs. Mayberry's store.

Billie Langenau, in charge of the files, tells Chatty that sometimes Jordan goes to lunch with Mr. "Van's" secretary, Agnes Herford. When Chatty tells Agnes the story, she adds to it, and says that Billie also said that Agnes and Jordan were crazy about each other. Agnes threatens to go to Billie with the story, and Chatty worries about it.

For she does not want to quarrel with Billie, who had arranged parties so that Chatty could meet Jordan outside the office. And she wishes that Agnes would lose her job and leave the office.

Then Willie Talcott, stenographer, tells her that Agnes and Mr. Van often lunch together, and Chatty decides to tell Mrs. Van about it. But her mother forbids her to.

Billie and her sister, Sara, come to live in the flat across the hall from the Chattertons, and Chatty learns that Billie is separated from a man named Brewster. But no one knows about it, not even George Mayhew, a bond salesman who is in love with Billie. One night at Billie's flat, Winnie Talcott sends out for liquor, and Chatty learns that Pud, her young brother, is selling it in Tomlinson's drug store, where he works evenings. She keeps the fact a secret from everyone, especially Dave Jordan, who makes love to her for the first time that night.

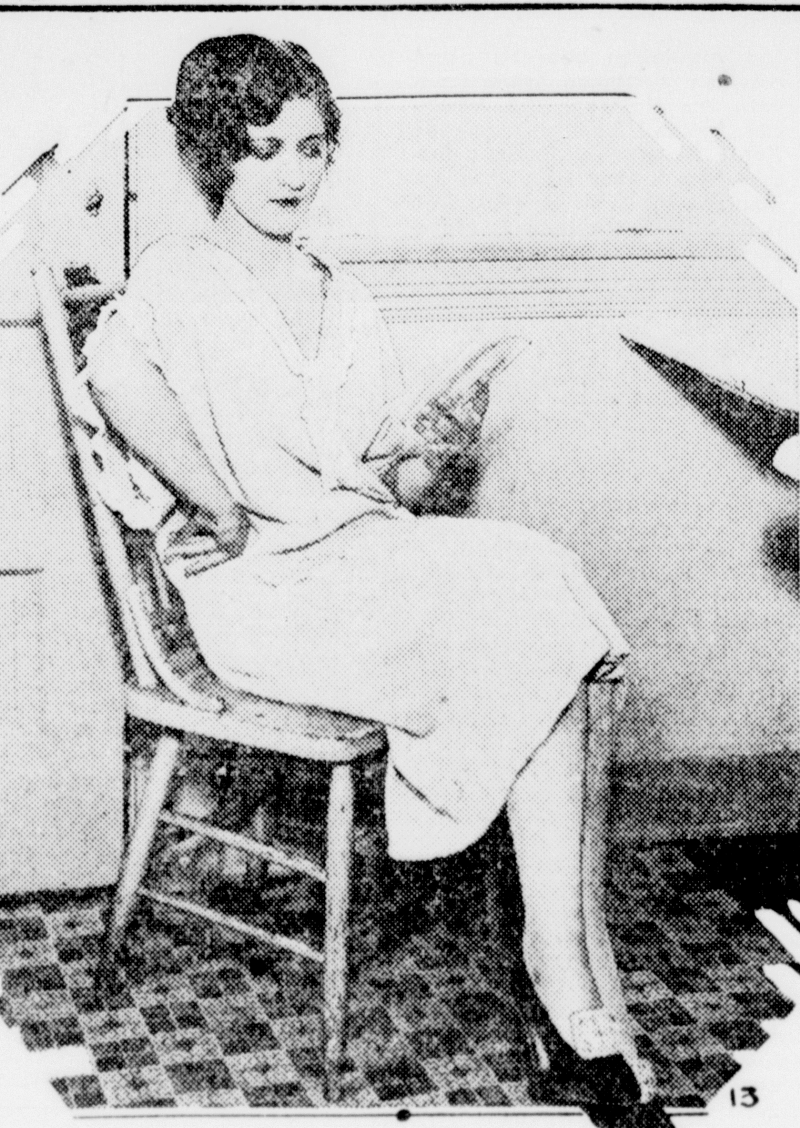

Late one afternoon Chatty sees Dave take a note on Agnes' desk. She takes Agnes' keys from her purse, and when the office is empty that night she goes through her desk. There she finds the note—a harmless little message. As she is putting it back into the drawer she finds one of Mr. Van's clean linen handkerchiefs in it, and decides to go through the whole desk just to see what she can find in it. (Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XIII
"Maybe so—and maybe not," Chatty debated the thing with herself. "Anyways, I may as well take a look-see through this interesting desk while I have the chance." Her little pink nostrils quivered like a hunting dog's when it is tracking down some helpless, frightened prey.

She felt that she was on the scent of something—somehow. Something that she could use against Agnes.

For she was afraid of Agnes. Afraid that she might go to Billie Langenau with the lie that Chatty had told her that noon.

Besides, she was jealous of Agnes' friendship with Dave Jordan—and what is stronger than fear and jealousy?

"The silly sap—she's in love with Mr. Van!"

That was all. Chatty's face went blank with disappointment as she came to the piece of shiny white paper that covered the bottom of the drawer. Just what she had hoped to find she did not know, for sure. A letter from Mr. Van Nuy, perhaps? Another note from Dave Jordan?

"Well, there isn't anything here, anyway," thought Chatty, and began to pick up the things she had thrown on the floor.

She was putting the towels back into the drawer when she saw that there was something flat and oblong lying hidden under the white paper that lined it.

It looked as if it might be a book. In a twinkling Chatty had it out from under the paper, and in her two small hands.

It WAS a book! It was Agnes' diary!

It was covered with black leather, and on its cover was the title in large, gold letters: "PAGE-A-DAY YEAR BOOK."

"Ha! Ha!" Chatty did not know that she said the words aloud. "What have we HERE?"

She was sure that no one would ever suspect her of the theft of the keys and the diary. No one had seen her in the office after hours but Dave Jordan. And she was pretty sure he had not seen the diary in her hands.

Chatty had the kitchen to herself that night. Mrs. Chatterton was hard at work in the front room, finishing three princess slips for Mrs. Van Nuy. Pud was "shooting soda" in Ben Tomlinson's drug store at the corner. At any rate, Chatty hoped that he was "shooting soda" and not helping Ben in his wicked business of selling forbidden alcohol to lawless customers.

And so, Chatty, washing dishes in the warm, cozy solitude of the little blue and white kitchen, propped Agnes' book up on the clock shelf above the sink, and read it as she worked.

It was almost nine o'clock when she turned the page to the last entry that Agnes had made. . . the entry for that day, Monday, May fourteenth.

"He asked me to have lunch with him today," she had written. "And afterwards he remembered that he was going to play golf this afternoon and would have to start at once. So I started out alone, and met that silly little Chatterton who told me B. L. had been gossiping about me. I think I shall have to go to him about B. L. But I hate to worry him with little annoying things. . . When a woman cares for a man she wants to keep everything smooth for him. And that's all I can do for the man I care for, ever. I can serve him, and that's all!"

Chatty closed the book and slipped it into the pocket of her bungalow apron.

"The silly sap. She's in love with Mr. Van!" she thought. "And she's going to him and make a lot of trouble for Billy, when somebody ought to make a lot of trouble for her, herself! Mrs. Van certainly would, if she could see this diary!"

And suddenly Chatty knew that Mrs. Van was going to see it! All at once she made up her mind to send it to Mrs. Van right away.

"She'll read it, and she'll kick up such a row that Mr. Van will just HAVE to get rid of Agnes!" Chatty thought it all out carefully. "And I'd better see that she gets it before Agnes has a chance to go to Mr. Van about Billie!"

Chatty could have laughed with relief as she tore page after page out of the diary and folded them into a big envelope. . . This was killing two birds with one stone, this was!

"For now Billie will never find out that I told Agnes that she left her—and we'll still be friends," she told herself. "And I'm getting even with Miss Smarty, besides—for calling me 'that silly little Chatterton'! She'll find out who's silly when Mrs. Van gets this envelope!"

She went down to Tomlinson's and bought a special delivery stamp for the letter. On the corner just outside stood a mail box. Chatty dropped the letter into it, and went home to sleep peacefully after what she told herself was a "good night's work."

The next afternoon Chatty went home early to get dressed to have dinner downtown with David Jordan. She heard voices when she opened the door of the flat, and there in the front room, having a lace-trimmed chiffon slip fitted, was Mrs. Van, herself.

Mrs. Chatterton was on the floor beside her, pinning up the hem of the elaborate and expensive garment, and the two women were talking as pleasantly as they always did of old times.

STUDY OF CONVICTS
MAY PREVENT CRIME
GRISWOLD CLAIMS

CLEVELAND, Aug. 27.—Study of 100 Ohio convicts advocated to H. H. Griswold, state director of public welfare, will suggest ways and means of preventing similar prison careers for 100 juveniles convicted during 1928, according to views expressed by Miss Leona Marie Esch, operating director of the Cleveland Association for Criminal Justice.

The 100 juveniles, convicted of penitentiary offenses, because of their youth were sentenced to Mansfield Reformatory or to juvenile institutions such as Lancaster Industrial School, Hudson boys farm and other places, Miss Esch pointed out.

The association's letter to Griswold, signed by former Common Pleas Judge Dan B. Cull, vice president, asked for a detailed analysis and study of the lives of 100 of Ohio's major criminals who have served time in the state's penal institutions and are at present incarcerated in order to ascertain:

The cause or causes of crime in each case.

The extent to which, and in what specific phase, the administration of criminal justice failed to function.

The adequacy or inadequacy of the local and state machinery for psychiatric and psychological study of crime and criminals.

Exactly what is needed to correct present weaknesses in laws and legal machinery.

"In co-operation with former juvenile court judge George S. Adams," Miss Esch said, "the association in 1923 conducted a somewhat similar study of ten criminals, under 21, charged with penitentiary offenses that year, and with previous juvenile court records."

"Of the ten, two have been sentenced to the penitentiary for long terms for crimes committed subsequent to 1923, and a third, Franklin Ganss, was the first person in Cleveland to be sentenced under the new habitual criminal act to life imprisonment in the Ohio penitentiary during August of this year."

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 27.—August brings "dog days" and with them comes the warning "beware of dog bites."

All of this Patrolman Henry Wiedeman knew — but he wasn't looking for a man to bite him.

Oakley resisted but was downed by Schoedinger after a struggle. Then he became angry.

Breaking away from Schoedinger, Oakley rushed at Wiedeman and sank his teeth into Wiedeman's right thigh.

The brothers were charged with assault and battery.

SHIPMENTS INCREASE

Ohio farmers marketed 45 per cent more livestock co-operatively in July this year than they did in same month last year and received $425,000 more for it. The net market value of the livestock handled by the county co-operative associations reporting to the Ohio Livestock Co-operative Association totaled $1,249,200. This was 52.48 per cent more money than farmers received in July a year ago. In fact, shipments were heavier than they have ever been in any midsummer month since the establishment of co-operative marketing in Ohio ten years ago.

As compared with the same month a year ago there were 6,536 or 17.17 per cent more farmers shipping co-operatively. They shipped 10,785,808 pounds, an increase of 45.55 per cent. If made into one train it would be 6 1/2 miles long, the shipments moving to market in 757 decks. The total number of hogs was 38,127; head, cattle 2,135 head, calves 3,492 head and sheep 6,414 head. STUDY OF CONVICTS
GRISWOLD CLAIMS

CLEVELAND, Aug. 27.—Study of 100 Ohio convicts, advocated by H. H. Griswold, state director of public welfare, will suggest ways and means of preventing similar prison careers for 100 juveniles convicted during 1928, according to views expressed by Miss Leona Marie Esch, operating director of the Cleveland Association for Criminal Justice.

The 100 juveniles, convicted of penitentiary offenses, because of their youth were sentenced to Mansfield Reformatory or to juvenile institutions such as Lancaster Industrial School, Hudson boys farm and other places, Miss Esch pointed out.

The association's letter to Griswold, signed by former Common Pleas Judge Dan B. Cull, vice president, asked for a detailed analysis and study of the lives of 100 of Ohio's major criminals who have served time in the state's penal institutions and at present incarcerated in order to ascertain:

The cause or causes of crime in each case.

The extent to which, and in what specific phase, the administration of criminal justice failed to function.

The adequacy or inadequacy of the local and state machinery for psychiatric and psychological study of crime and criminals.

Exactly what is needed to correct present weaknesses in laws and legal machinery.

"In co-operation with former juvenile court judge George S. Adams," Miss Esch said, "the association in 1923 conducted a somewhat similar study of ten criminals, under 21, charged with penitentiary offenses that year, and with previous juvenile court records."

"Of the ten, two have been sentenced to the penitentiary for long terms for crimes committed subsequent to 1923, and a third, Franklin Ganss, was the first person in Cleveland to be sentenced under the new habitual criminal act to life imprisonment in the Ohio penitentiary during August of this year."

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 27.—August brings "dog days" and with them comes the warning "beware of dog bites."

All of this Patrolman Henry Wiedeman knew — but he wasn't looking for a man to bite him.

On hearing a report that two brothers, John and Oakley Fowler, were carrying revolvers, Wiedeman, with Leroy Schoedinger, patrolman, went to arrest them.

Oakley resisted but was downed by Schoedinger after a struggle. Then he became angry.

Breaking away from Schoedinger, Oakley rushed at Wiedeman and sank his teeth into Wiedeman's right thigh.

The brothers were charged with assault and battery.
